

Amref Health Africa envisions a continent free of Female Genital Cutting (FGC), where girls are empowered to continue their education and become the women of their dreams.

Our achievements

+17,000

girls transitioned to womanhood through ARP*, without the cut

Legislation to end FGC

Ban of FGC and early marriage in the new Maa constitution; anti-FGC bylaws approved in Kilindi (TZ); anti-FGC act approved in Kajiado (KE)

5.4 million

people in Kenya and Northern Tanzania were reached through a local FM radio programme

+400

traditional birth attendants trained on the health risks of FGC

90,000

girls, boys, morans, parents, cultural elders and other community members educated on the effects of FGC and importance of education

+30 ARP
ceremonies

More girls are staying in school

+850 peer educators trained

* Alternative Rite of Passage (ARP) is one of Amref Health Africa's innovative community-driven approaches to eliminate FGC and celebrates the cultural transition from girl into womanhood - through education, not the cut.

As a result

FGC prevalence dropped from 45% to 14% of unmarried girls between the ages of 10 and 24

14%

47.9%

of the Morans see their ideal marriage partner as educated, up from 20.9%

94.9%

of uncircumcised girls want FGC to stop

Only 10% of the population in the communities is in favour of FGC continuing

End FGC by 2030

Amref Health Africa wants to eradicate FGC in sub-Saharan Africa by 2030. This will have direct positive effects on issues related to FGC, including:
